DOUGLASS GETS HIS FREEDOM

Release Corpus Proceedings Secure Release of Man Found in Hotel Gettysburg. Warden Hears of his Arrest.

On Wednesday afternoon Arthur Douglass was discharged from the custody of Sheriff Flood following a habeas corpus hearing held before Judge Swope. The proceeding was brought at the instance of Douglass' attorney, J. Donald Swope, Esq.

Douglass was arrested Tuesday March 21 on a charge brought by D. G. E. Trebby of the Hotel Gettysburg who charged that Douglass had, early at night in the kitchen of the hotel, threatened to do serious injury to him as "Yellow," explained his presence there by saying that he had been asked by the night watchman, Leonard Hickens to help him clean up and he was there for that purpose. The watchman corroborated that he had made the request claimed Douglass was paid for his services, however, and has been in Sheriff Flood's care until Wednesday's hearing.

At the time of the arrest Douglass insisted that he would not make an attempt to escape if allowed to go on his own recognizance for appearance at Court as he is on parole from a sentence under the new indeterminate sentence law, from the Eastern Penitentiary and he wished to keep up good behavior.

On Wednesday afternoon immediately after the hearing Sheriff Flood received a telegram from the warden of the penitentiary which stated that he had heard that Douglass had broken his parole and that the Sheriff should hold him for the Court's pleasure. The Court instructed Sheriff Flood to wire the warden that the statements that Douglass had just been discharged on habeas corpus by the Court was contested. The parole as far as the record in the case discovered has not, therefore, been broken.

She leaves one daughter, Miss Mary Walbert and one son, Charles Walbert, both at home. She is also survived by one brother, Jacob G. Sheets, of Cherrian, and one sister, Mrs. Daniel Fry, of Fayetteville.

TO ERECT LARGE CONCRETE BRIDGE

County Commissioners will have Re-enforced Concrete Bridge Built to Replace Collapsed Structure at Aspers.

To replace the bridge over Possum Creek at Aspers, which collapsed on Monday, the County Commissioners will build a handsome re-enforced concrete granite structure about 90 feet in length.

This is in line with the resolution passed by the Commissioners several years ago when they decided to build nothing but re-enforced concrete bridges. Many concrete arch structures have been erected and both in appearance and in permanency have proved satisfactory.

It is planned by the Commissioners to have the new bridge at Aspers completed by October 1st at a price which it will be exactly in line with the proposed bridge which the Commissioners Hartzell and Carlisle re provided for in the Spring Creek Bill. Whether or not the new bridge will be wide enough to be known until architects' plans are submitted.

It has been generally reported that the old bridge which collapsed on Monday had been condemned. This is denied by Clerk to the Commissioners Mrs. Minty Miller to be incorrect. Mrs. Miller stated that the impression of the rumor by calling attention to the fact that a load of stone which had been loaded unsafe if it had been condemned.

The old bridge was erected about forty years ago. Its collapse is attributed to the weight of the runaway team, which crossed over it. The bridge was built for "ordinary loads" and drop into the creek. That the bridge was condemned is to be proved by citing the passage to heavy four horse teams over it a few minutes before the collapse.

The loss to the road structure is being rapidly cleared away.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES

The bridge over Possum Creek at Aspers collapsed on Monday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The team was being driven by a Mr. Tetzell and the horses had taken fright and was running full speed over the structure. The bridge started to give way and the driver jumped in time to pull the vehicle from the dropping structure to safety, although the rear wheels of the wagon on the bridge across the creek as there is no other way for a wagon to cross by ford-ing.

TWO MORE YEARS FOR EDDIE PLANK

Local Pitcher with Philadelphia Athletics is Reported to have Said that Two Seasons would Close his Career.

The year 1912 will witness the retirement of Eddie Plank from baseball, says a newspaper dispatch. At the close of the season two years hence the great southpaw who has been a bulwark of strength for the Athletics since the American league invaded Philadelphia will go back to the farm and the simple life according to the story printed which says:

Plank has told a few of the big left hander from Gettysburg himself. Go like to the ground at Savannah, Ga., one day last week he and Jack Coombs were talking about the arm in on a ball player. Both agreed that each season with its worry, its strain, its physical wear and its mental anxiety takes a little more of the life of every player each season.

"Two more years," said Eddie, "and I think that I will be back to the farm to stay then the rest of my life. I shall quit the game in 1912 and I think that I shall have two more good years.

"I have earned this long rest. In 1911 I will have been a dozen years in the games as a pitcher. I started with Connie Mack and I want to quit with him.

"Most of those fellows who sit in the bleachers envy me when they see how a lad day think that all you have to do is travel around the country and work a couple of hours a day. I must say that baseball is a hard game on the actual work, in twirling one game of baseball there is as much hard work on the farm.

"I am not a marvel and work until somehow in the country and then sleep like a baby. I have to work a great deal of ball and my arm aches, I'm sore over and cannot sleep for pain. You take baseball as a whole it is a hard through. If I haven't enough to live on when I quit I will not be in baseball twice as long.

"Gosling pitched for Eddie in 1910."

FREIGHT CARS DERAILED

Two freight cars standing on a switch south of the Western Maryland depot in Gettysburg were derailed Monday evening during the storm. The wind blew one of the cars over and one hundred feet away from the tracks. The other car was blown more than twenty five feet away. A number of stars blown from the roof of Dr. L. H. Klinefelter's residence and from other buildings, smashing holes in the roofs. The wind blew the heavy iron blown down at the edge of the plate the Western Md. road, causing telegraphic service to be out of commission. CLAYBAUGH GOES TO PENITENTIARY

Pleads Guilty in Charge of Larceny of Chickens and Sentence of from One to Three Years is Imposed. Started at Once.

J. M. Claybaugh plead guilty at a session of Court held Tuesday to the larceny of chickens of Mrs. R. Lee Tipton, East Middle street, several weeks ago and was sentenced to undergo imprisonment of not less than one or more than three years in the Eastern Penitentiary. He was taken in charge by Detective on Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff George Fitzel.

It will be remembered that Clay-baugh's guilt was largely established by the testimony of Harry Crouse who claimed in the hearing before Squire Bertram that Claybaugh had compelled him to go along on the chicken stealing expedition. The arrest was made on the day following the theft.

Edward A. Wenner, Esq., asked for clemency for the prisoner and Jo ge Swope in pronouncing sentence stated Claybaugh's attention to the fact that he was in a position to get off lightly but hundred yards away in the old lumber yard and that the chickens were secured after having been there all night in getting out.

RAILROAD TIE-UP

There was trouble on the Susquehanna road on Wednesday morning which impaired the entire system and delayed all trains in operation until late in the day.

The reliable engine with its trigin which has been pressed into service to haggage car left East Berlin on schedule time in the morning bound for the Junction. When steaming through the yards at the Junction, the engine, the drivers lost their actuation and the train came to a standstill. There was trouble in the steam chest, it was found, but treatment in the roundhouse hospital.

The passengers were transferred to chose of another "plug power" to Hanover Sue miles distant by the air line and reached the Pennsylvania station on the Western Maryland about two hours late.

Incidents along the 'pike, observing string of pedestrians with baggage in hand, thought a theatrical troupe which might have been stranded at New Oxford.

The building was a three story structure and at the time the fire was discovered was a high mass of flames. By the time the fire department arrived the whole structure was in ruins and the firemen had to confine their efforts to saving several nearby buildings. Origin of fire unknown.

HIGHER SALARIES FOR THE TEACHERS

Adams County Teachers to be Given Examinations for Permanent Certificates This Law Entitles Fifty Dollar Pay.

County Superintendent Bolt has announced that the examination for teachers for professional certificates will be held some time in May, the day to be fixed later.

Teachers holding high grade professional certificates who possess a thorough knowledge of the common branches and have had an extended successful experience in teaching, may be granted professional certificates this year.

The examination for permanent certificates will be held in the High School building, Gettysburg, April 1st. Teachers who wish to enter the class or have additional branches added to their certificates are requested to correspond with the County Superintendent or any member of the committee, Prof. P. D. Keener, Abbottstown; Prof. Chetlin A. Leidig, Fairfield and Miss Bernadine Carrigan, Littlestown.

Teachers who have received professional certificates and all other teachers holding certificates of a higher grade than a provisional certificate, and who have had a two years' experience since present to school boards certificates of proficiency for the two years from the superintendent under whom they taught.

Teachers applying to the superintendent for professional certificates, whether they wish to teach in Adams county or elsewhere, are requested to do so before the end of the school year.

The State will not pay the increase in salary of fifty dollars to a teacher who cannot present a certificate of proficiency.

The Snyder act allows a minimum remuneration of $50 a month to teachers holding professional, permanent or normal school certificates, and who have successfully taught two years in the public schools of the state. Teachers holding certificates of low grade are given a smaller salary.

The certificate of proficiency does not at its of entitle the holder to teach, but is for examination and to supplement any a certificate of a higher grade than a provisional certificate. Accounts for the increased compensation can be ignored by school directors, notwithstanding that the teachers have professional normal school or academic certificates, in the event that they do not teach in the district which show that they were successful in the practice of teaching during the two years previous.

JOHN C. LOWER IN LOCAL STORE

Well Known Business Man Purchases Share in Gettysburg Department Store formerly Owned by Mr. Miller.

John C Lower has purchased the interest of Mr. E. F. Miller formerly with the Gettysburg Department Store, and that interest became his on March 1st 1911.

Mr. Lower has been engaged in the wholesale grocery trade for the past 15 years, there he's a man of experience, but also he has rige experience in purchasing goods in a Store, for he was for fifteen years with Messers Fink Bergdoll Company of Philadelphia, sixteen years in Philadelphia with Messers H. E. Kleinz & Company and four and one half years with Messrs J. W. Myers and Company of Hagerstown, Md.

During this sellers period Mr. Lee of has had but two weeks' vacation, each week out time.

In the institute the Department Store upon securing a man of Mr. Lowers ability and record can now make a choice. Engineers and architects are employed at present working out the advantages of both locations, and the statement is made that he had not yet started drafting plans for the building, but that it will soon until Mr. Gladfelter had given his decision as to location.

The report became current recently that Mr. Gladfelter would move to Hanover, but this is emphatically untrue. Most of his time is spent in the Star Hotel, Hanover and he is intimately involved with the progress of Hanover and has no thought of ever such there if for no other reason it is the social life of Hanover and he is not extended into through Europe with his family this summer.

CAPTAIN A. M. WINTER.

W. A. Mellhenny has received a letter from Lexington, North Carolina, announcing the death of Captain A. M Hunter, formerly Captain of Company K, 138th Pennsylvania. He was well known Adams County. He died from a stroke of paralysis. The company "G" and promoted to first lieutenant. Then he was one of the company at the end of three years' service. He was a member of Lodge No. 87, Loyal National Bank of Gettysburg. He is survived by his wife who was Mrs Annie Boyd.

SAYS THE AUTOS SPEED

Mellhenryburn is complaining of autoists speeding. A correspondent writes: "Automobiles are the nuisance are becoming disgusted on account of their speeding. Last Sunday a car from town at breakneck speed. Thursday a machine passed through here on the Main street at such speed that had a team from either of the roads been encountered Main street it would have been impossible to avoid a collision. This is the usual disastrous and probably fatal result of speeding and will take some action to put a stop to this practice."

HOT SCALDS.

Walter, the eighteen months son of Jacob B. Herbaugh, of near Barlow, was very painfully scalded on Monday morning when water exploded on a stove, the boiling liquid being thrown all over the child. The clothing was torn from the sides of his head and face were terribly scalded and for an hour the little sufferer gets until he was given relief. The quick application of cotton batting allayed the pain and at this writing he is getting along nicely.

CARPENTERS IN JOINT.

PAT

By CARROLL H. PIERCE.

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I was tramping in Switzerland. I set out one morning from Trarp on the road to Geneva. I was waiting after enjoying the beautiful prospect about me—Lake Leman and white Alpine peaks in the foreground—when I heard behind me a wagon coming and turned to see a two horse team and two drivers. Over its shoulder he cursed at me in a way all of which was using a headdress handkerchief, evidently to protect his face from the dust. I thought:

"Upon my word," I said to myself, "if there isn't a man of my own race! I did take tramping along here in Switzerland."

There is a kinship among those who are the same blood regardless of race, and when they meet in foreign lands. It was this kinship that believed me to increase my pace till I reached the team. Then I fell in with the drivers and ran a good natured face and an honest Irish face. I had found a countryman and a mate.

"The top of the morning to you, sir," I said to the driver. "Top o' the morning!"

"And how did you know me name was Pat?" he asked.

"Oh, you green islanders are all at one! Pat—Pat—Pat! It's the very cleanest of hitting your name."

"Faith, and you may be rejoined, "unless you're a colonist. I know that by your face."

"I'm an American. But what has brought you to Switzerland? Have you left your native land to seek your fortune? Are you looking for a chance to marry money and so become one of the new lords?"

"Where there's a fellow to do all the work."

My reply to this was a smile. The countryman took it as an insult and was as broad as that of an Irish peasant. "Sir," he said, "I am not ashamed of hauling for a job in Switzerland I could not get elsewhere."

Whether it was that I longed for the companionship of one who had a common language or because there was something about the honest face of my fellow traveler I don't know, but I was drawn to him and said: "Pat, I'm a rich man. I've come to Europe for a fling. Coming in a village, we sat down together at a table in the open air at a hotel on the margin of the lake and ordered a luncheon. Pat was a handsome fellow, with a face that sparkling with wit and humor, but which was also unevenly accentuated. I undertook to ask him how he came by his looks, but he wouldn't have it. I insisted that he tell me, and he said that he was not for having been so pleasantly cheered, as he would like to tell me. Then he said, money enough to take him to Canada, and as soon as he got there would pay his own way.

"Pat," I said, "I'm getting was that you have been in trouble. Now, I've passed a cheer hotel be proposed to me to buy it. Will you go into the hotel with me? I chose the same because it was the first I came to. Pat and I took the seat day toward Dijon, Switzerland. He called the good natured landlord to him and ordered a bottle of wine. The landlord, who took Pat for a guest, brought the wine in other way for him to get home but by and by he couldn't walk and he hadn't sufficient money to ride. I told him that I was going to Paris and had before returning to America and that I would like to have his company. I converged to buy the best, and, with the wine, I had a fine lunch. The amount. On parting with this I asked him what he was to be doing in Switzerland. He smiled that good natured smile of his and said that he would be explained when I saw him again.

It was several months before I saw Pat. I was in Dublin, and one day in Dublin I posted a letter announcing my arrival in Queenstown. I had a reply from a village not far from the city, and I went down to see the letter. The landlord in the village, who had a relative of his old trouble, chief among which was a love affair, and I kindly rose with the letter." There was a letter from Pat, and it read:

I thought there must be some mistake in the letter you sent me, but I was not sure, and I went to the police station, where I found a carriage with a driver who knew me. He was a good hearer of the note. I was put into the carriage and driven for an hour, when we turned into a handsome place. At the door of the house I saw a man sitting on the porch with one leg thrown over the arm of his chair. He stood grim, evidently at the surprise of my visit. I was met by a man of some other than my fellow traveler, Pat.

"Pat!" I exclaimed.

"I am a gentleman," he said, "and a gentleman's son and the others of the family are away. I have been left in charge of Erinna since his father and mother have gone to Switzerland. He had fancied in young as an Irish peasant having taken a fancy to me, and I consented to go with him. I have been treated as a gentleman since I left Dublin. I have had the best of everything, and I have had a carriage with a driver and driven for an hour. Now we are

PREPARING FOR NEW BUILDING

Experiment to Find Kind of Earth and Stone to be Contended with in Planning for New Government Structure.

Under the direction of Postmaster C. William Heuer, test holes have been sunk on the site of the proposed new post office building at the corner of Baltimore and high streets for the purpose of ascertaining what kind of ground and rock are present.

The work was done upon the request of the Supervising Architect, Mr. Taylor, who is completing the plans for the government structure, the cost of which is expected to be started about July 1st. By dates it is learn which conditions would have to be met in drawing up the specifications for the foundation of the building.

The test holes were sunk to a depth of ten to fifteen feet. Two of them produced sand rock and the others, still deeper ones, clay. Local masons declare both to be admirably adapted for the work intended, and either would prove to be advised.

The two story structure as planned has been fully described in these columns. The appropriation of $200,000 for its erection was secured at the last session of Congress through the efforts of Congressman Lafean.

The work on the site has made a number of holes which are more or less dangerous and parents are requested to forbid their children playing about the premises.

SCOUTS TO WATCH TRAMPS

The Gettysburg Troop of Boy Scouts are much interested in the announcement that Daniel C. Beard, National Scout Commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, has evolved a means by which the boys throughout the country can make a systematic war upon tramps and hoboes on the United States railroads.

WHY TROOPS ARE IN TEXAS

Were Sent to Border on Demand of Ingalls.

DOLLARS AT BOTTOM OF ALL

President Taft Explains His Course In Mexican Affair to Republican Congressmen and Gets Approval.

Washington, March 31.—American dollars, invested in Mexican railroads backed by the American army, with the American dollars and the American pounds sterling auxiliary invested elsewhere, are going to bring peace to Mexico.

This is in accordance with the plan agreed upon in New York when the representatives of the western financial factions went thither to consult with John Pres. Lincoln and the representatives of the American dollars.

President Taft explained the situation in four hours' conference with the foreign relations committee. And he told the senate leaders that everything he did exactly right to safeguard the interests of the United States.

Senatorial will be the de facto head of the Mexican republic, as designed in the New York meetings. Porfirio Diaz may be continued as the figurehead, but the actual power will be in the hands of the financial interests. Whether this can be continued or not depends entirely upon the success of the American army.

President Taft explained the situation to four Democratic senators and the foreign relations committee. And he told the senate leaders that everything he did exactly right to safeguard the interests of the United States.

The reasons for the sending of the troops to the border were explained to the senate leaders by the president. They were the same reasons that were given to the house leaders by Secretary Ingalls of the navy department. Ingalls was sent to the capitol by the president to explain the situation to the house leaders.

Ingalls told the house leaders that the troops were sent to the border because of the fear that the Mexican revolutionists would attack the Americans and destroy the property of the Americans in Mexico. The president explained the same thing to the senate leaders.

Senator Lodge, who is a member of the foreign relations committee, said that the president had explained the situation fully to the committee and that the committee was satisfied with the explanation.

Senator Lodge said that the president had explained that the troops were sent to the border because of the fear that the Mexican revolutionists would attack the Americans and destroy the property of the Americans in Mexico.

CHARGED WITH FALSE PRETENSE

Chief Shealer Arrests Emmitsburg Man Charged with Trading Horse which he Did not Own. Placed in County Jail.

Henry Bowman, of Emmitsburg, was arrested in this place on Monday afternoon by Chief of Police Shealer charged with obtaining a horse under false pretenses. He was followed to same trade with John Fagan, of the Globe Hotel.

Bowman who is about twenty-five years of age had driven a spry mare from Emmitsburg in a team of the McCarren livery, of that place. When they arrived in Gettysburg he offered to trade with Mr. Fagan and the deal was consummated. It is said that each party valued his horse at $200.00.

The party who accompanied Bowman here became suspicious and said that he believed Bowman was trading a horse which did not belong to him. Telephone communication was established with the Emmitsburg livery and instructions were given Chief Shealer to hold the man. Later in the evening parties from the Mountain House came and got the horse while Mr. Fagan had his retained.

Bowman was placed in the county jail by Chief Shealer. He will likely be given a hearing.

FROST DAMAGES CLOVER

In some sections farmers who have visited the clover fields since the recent severe and unseasonable cold snap have found great injury but to prove clover by the frost. In many cases the fields are viewed as a total loss and stalks that have been frozen, the long top locks being exposed to the sun and wind.

It is also noticeable that field corn has been especially destructive here to grass fields during the past winter. These rodents live on roots of grass and fed mainly in winter on roots or grasses. During this time when the ground is covered with a blanket of snow, which shields them from the cold and their enemies, such as the skunk, weasel, rat, fox and hawk, they operate principally upon the surface of the ground, and the damage is often not set by the roots Their many runways are noticeable on the top of the ground.

200,000 ATTENDED INSTITUTES

Reports which are being received at the office of A. L. Martin, director of the state's farmers' institutes, indicate that the attendance at the [illegible] and morning meeting during the season of 1910—1911 reached the record breaking figures of 200,000. This is announced for by the weather conditions which permitted traveling and by the interest aroused by the practical teaching and talks.

Last year held the record as the banner year, a total attendance of more than 175,000 and 186,000 being noted, the institute sessions alone attracting 150,000 persons. At the close of the season it is estimated that 175,000 persons attended the meetings arranged for by the state's seven counties, and that over 25,000 were at the institutes in Berks.

CHILD NEAR DEATH

Carl, the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fire Hoover, of Littlestown, made a narrow escape from death Saturday 30. Hoover secured a Chief Cook Conserve Township Adams County to be home which had been condemned by family who, it is said, left a bottle containing carbolic acid on the mantel. The child found the bottle, and drank some of the liquid. The prompt action of the child's condition and family's solicitude for the child, it is said, the child's mouth and throat were badly burned by the acid, but from present indications, the child will recover in opinion that no serious result will follow.

HORSE LIKES CORN COB

Mr. Groft, the fish merchant, of Mcllherrystown, issues a challenge to any horse owner in the state to say that their animals is a corn eating animal.

Mr. Groft says that the horse in Fishman's big barn got loose in the stable in the other night and ate through the corn about in the dark, proceeded to fill up. Before he was found he satisfied, it had decorated 60 ears of corn, including the cobs.

Lola M. Brown, daughter of George A. Bowers, of Biglerville, has left for the First Pennsylvania Training School, Millersville, where she will continue her studies, making a specialty of music which she has studied for that place after her return about July 1st.

PARK FOR HABERSTOWN

Hagerstown voted Monday in favor of establishing a public park, the issue being decided by a vote of 1,200 to 616. Every ward indorsed the act and the Mayor and Council will borrow $90,000 for the park.

THE ROADS OF THE WHOLE WORLD MUST BE REMADE

"Old Macadam Will No Longer Stand Strain of Automobile."

Hatton P. Lewis, chief engineer of the board of estimate and apportionment of Manhattan, New York city, believes that the roads of the whole civilized country will have to be rebuilt because old macadam, the best known road material for highways, is unable to stand the strain of automobiles. Mr. Lewis says he is about to put automobiles, motor trucks and motor buses on the streets of Manhattan, and that the roads of the kind that are now in the city streets will not stand the strain. The subject recently, Mr. Lewis said:

"While I believe that with a reasonable sufficience, such as tar, asphalt or mineral oil, we can keep the old macadam material for loose rock and sand in place for automobiles, the old macadam should be rebuilt, as they must be soaked with tar, asphalt or mineral oil, and the old macadam roads of the country will have to be rebuilt because the automobile is going to be developed far faster than people have begun to believe."

THE BROODER NURSERY.

The nursery is really the whole brooder, including the hover and the run parlor, in the people's playground, the nursery does the nature fake stunt of playing mamma hen. This is done with the hover, which of the picture is heated from a lamp in a box outside. Some are heated with hot water or steam. We wish to emphasize the importance of the hover as a factor in pneumonia in artificial brooding, for we have yet to see the hover that does not often lose them in faulty hovers. You will note this nursery scene is from the door being mostly glass to give the chicks plenty of light and the all essential for fattening the sick chick. The hover is made of wood, in large sizes, the matting the whole is better built, the chicks and the scene but being always in sight.

The hover is a decoy. It is twenty two inches in diameter, ten inches high and is all clear some beneath. It has no hot drum against which chicks crowd and get overheated and trampled to soot and lump fumes come up into the hover to suffocate, to prevent which six up the chicks' legs and make room crimps.

The heat is exerted and radiates down as in nature. It comes from a lamp box outside, circulates through a flue/duct underneath and up in top of hover, and all lamp fumes are returned to the outside. The chicks are not only deadly to chicks, is entirely eleared. The hover rests on top of the heat receiver, and with a regulator attached to the lamp flue the heat can be kept at even temperature even in zero weather.

The hover is made of wood, with matting on the inside. The matting is cleaned every day, for if chicks are compelled to live in their own filth stamping apartment they are soon left off or starved.

For a good brooderer, a dropping floor and a soft bedding of sand is absolutely keen on our brooder floors and sand is the bedding.

FEATHERS AND GOODWILLS.

Nathan F. Yost of Exeter's Church, Berks county, has a pet woodpecker that might live absolute in one night. Burglars and footpads should get Mr. Yost's prize silver cup for protecting their premises from intruders, for the pet is eagle mode!

Mr. Yost around his hundred turkeys were locked up, dressed and shipped to New York, arriving there in time for York to shape Pennsylvania dealer. Mr. Yost's woodpecker was left on the day.

When a poultry association or agricultural society contracts with a party to judge their poultry, especially as a matter of experience as well as price should be considered. The following facts are of some value in showing what is desirable in a judge of poultry, published recently in Farm and Home:

"Should be a great pest to poultry, as he will destroy vermin, insects, eating eggs and gobbling chicken. Hogs will root up the nests and eat the chickens.

Hens seldom get hard coop from scratch-thru straw on the scratching shed, and when they do get hard coop and food is thrown in the litter. They have to work for it. Hens should never go on much straw cells and blocks way from the floor.

By pulling of the wrapes six dozen chickens can be killed and dressed by a trading the Danville pa.) market. He says that he can do it in less time than market price, but failed. In night he has killed and dressed 100 chickens, and rate rolling ten dozen capons was for sale at the city market.

In the rainy season oats are a specially good article of food, as they are not deleterious to diarrhea. White wheat will be found more satisfactory than any other way with chickens.

Mr. Hoover who started to raise pests on a side issue discovers that the fierce little fighters are fruit flies. They are said to be a menace to crops in a dozen states.

The pigeon is a great pest to the cherry grower and quacks in the removing of the cherry crop will cost from $3 to $25 each, according to color. Twenty-five thousand pigeons were destroyed last year in the St. Louis convention and exposition.

Keep your weather eye on the hog weather's eye on the hog that is the hog will come to a bad end. Watch that your hogs are not off their feed. Worms or lungs in a don't care style. He is covered with worms or he's a little in his constitution.

When a good number of fowls are kept there should be a place to store grain. The bins should be tight that rats cannot gnaw into them, and the building be clear underneath so that no animal harbor. Teach the cat to stop at the bins, and she will soon learn to do so.

The Scrap Book

Handed Some His Own Coin.

A Weshington preacher tells the following story of his young wife, who, by the way, has not reached the shaving age yet, but is in the hazy indefinite, which seems to varying:

"I was in my study and was reading to her some passages in the paper," explained, Talbot, 'I set in the paper that the circulation is going to beat that you are president of.

"Then, I knew, by the tone about my business then the paper, so I turned over, pretending to be sad, never before anything you see in the paper.

"A few days later I found my new name broken, and my wife's picture and thrown behind the house. I immediately left for Washington, and

"Look here, young man, what's the meaning of all this?" I demanded. 'Has my new name broken all to pieces, and my wife's picture been thrown behind the house?'

"She looked puzzled, looking hastily at me, and said: 'never before saying you see in the newspaper.'"—Washington Star.

Fireplaces Are Dangerous.

Senator William Pierson Piere of Philadelphia, who recently died in his home fireplace in an Albany hotel contributed the following to the press:

"I remember thirty years ago, when I was a boy, I used to sleep in a room without fifteen or eighteen of an—all kinds—blankets on my bed, and I never got cold. Now I have to have a fire and I am also chilly. It was a raw, wet night when I left Albany, and I felt it a little. It seems in, tried to get accommodations for the night, but could not get them at all. The nearest other place was a mile away. Then I went to the steamer, looked at the fire, but we formed such a crowd around it that I could not get near it. Finally they let me through and I got a chair. I sat down by him and said;

"My friend, are you a traveler?

"I am, sir. I have been all over the world.

"You don't say! Been in Germany, Italy, France, Spain, and Australia in Africa and Asia?

"Yes, I have been in all those countries.

"Ever been in hell?

"No, I never was there before twice.

"How did you find things there?

"Well, I'll tell you how it was—business all went to the fire."—New York Herald.

The Old Nut Look Right.

Nuts are becoming scarce, and one of the kind that figures in many an anecdote is the nut that is found unexpectedly at a picnic when a well known novelist is present. Then it is the one picture underneath to set up the word "doughnut" that is the favorite.

"See here" said the novelist, "don't you think I look like a doughnut?"

You're simplified in here" interrupted the picnicker, and everyone came over and gazed at the proof and scratched their heads in wonder.

"Well," he admitted, "that doesn't look much like me, but I'll bet I'm the one somewhere that didn't look right to you."

An Untold Story.

There was a man who lived in Chautauqua Grove's unfathoming skillful research in the art of fishing.

Feeling the need of spindling himself in something new, he took out a county sanitarium which made a business of giving people new ideas and changing the digestion. In the routine work of the establishment he was the assistant half hour devoted to pushing up into the air the feet of patients who lay with him as with every other feature of the institution he was thoroughly conscientious. However, the superintendent of the place was not so conscientious.

Every time the assistant's patient received he had the inevitable thrust him up into the air. Every time he was the same he pushed them into the other patient's feet. Every time he was with every other feature of the institution he was thoroughly conscientious. However, the superintendent of the place was not so conscientious.

He let his hands drop in his sides and looked at the superintendent. "I'm done," he said, "this reminds me of a story."

"Tell it," said the superintendent feebly. "Before long or pushing those patients around."

"Once upon a time," began the assistant, "there was a man who lived in Chautauqua Grove."

Paying His Debt.

A prominent and popular professor who loved to flunk his students was examining a class in philosophy. He invited under a microscope for identification a drop of blood obtained by pricking his own finger. One of the students who had been particularly severely treated by the examiner to stem to his feet and, with a look of hatred and triumph, said fiercely and proudly replied, "A reptile, sir!"

LOCAL ANGLERS HOLD ELECTION

Gettysburg Camp United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania Re-elect Officers Would Keep List of Successful Anglers.

Gettysburg Camp 5, United Sportsmen of Pennsylvania elected officers for the coming year on Friday evening. Last year's officers were re-elected, president, Charles Eckert; vice-president, Charles W. Myers; secretary and treasurer, C. K. Gilbert.

The membership now numbers fourteen forty and fifty and the dues for the year are payable on or before May first.

The following letter from W. E. Meehan, Commissioner of Fisheries was read:

"I am desirous of securing information with respect to the game fish interests of the state and in this connection the camps of the United Sportsmen can render great assistance. What I particularly desire is that the camps obtain as far as possible the number of trout and other fish caught this year by the members and their friends or acquaintances. This can be done by each member reporting to the Secretary the number and kind of fish he catches on his return from each fishing trip in Pennsylvania, if possible with the total weight, also reporting to the secretary the number and weight of any catches made by others of which the member has reliable knowledge. This report can be sent to me at the close of the season and at the close of the trout season.

"Date of this kind will be of great value in the expansion of the Department of Fisheries' work and the extension of the work of stocking by the authority of the Legislature."

"Records can be kept in a small book by the secretary and will certainly prove of interest also to the members of the camp."

ENCAMPMENT AT BLUE MOUNTAIN HOUSE

A movement is on foot to get the Maryland State Militia Encampment for this Mountain city. W. H. G. McComas, assistant Blue Mountain Power Company, made a trip to Washington to confer with Henry M. Warfield, Col. Charles D. Gaither and other members of the committee that will decide where the encampment will be held at a conference with the committee on the train on Thursday night on the way going to Westminster to look over the situation there.

Mr. McComas offered the free use of 427 acres of land adjacent to the Blue Mountain House and a large spring of pure water, there being area springs on the property. He also offered the fraternal privileges, between the hotel and Pen Mar Park, which will be excellent site for the camp. There is a reservoir of 500,000 gallons of perfect deep that supplies the hotel and there is a large barn on the property, also a swimming pool.

The committee promised Mr. McComas to give his proposition due consideration.

It is now assumed almost that Waynesboro will soon have a general hospital of its own. The work of securing funds will start in the near future and the establishment of a hospital is looked for this summer.

LATE DIVISION IS UNPOPULAR

Recent Division of Tyrone Township for Election Purposes is not Approved by [illegible] of Citizens Say Three Residents.

A. H. Spangler, William M. Deshirch and C. W. Hykes, residents of Tyrone township, have filed a petition in their attorney J. Donald Swope, Esq., asking for the division of the said township as provided in the present act of assembly. Said petition is as follows:

To the Honorable the Judges of said Court of Quarter Sessions of Adams County, Pa.

The petition of the undersigned citizens of Tyrone township, Adams county, Pa., respectfully represents:

That your petitioners are citizens of said township and have been for a long time past.

That the said township is divided into two districts, the one being laid out by the commissioners for the reason that all parties interested were not duly notified made by the commissioners and the said division was made by commissioners conscious of voting at the present time, and your petitioners are opposed to adopting the line as suggested the commissioners, and believe that the township would be accommodated by a new division of the said township, which will necessarily inconvenience the voters according between the two dividing lines.

The exceptants reserve the right to offer testimony in support of exceptions.

COLLAR BONE BROKEN

Dennis Boyd, son of Merwin Boyd, Mount Joy, met with an accident which it was feared would prove fatal but is now thought to be not dangerous. A barrel of vinegar had been rolled up to the top of a platform and when the boy was left to watch it. The barrel got away from him on the slope and the boy was thrown into the cellar. He struck a cement floor on his head and remained in that condition for an hour. Dr. Diehl was summoned and found that the boy's collar bone was broken by the fall and that he had received other injuries along the body. The patient is getting along nicely.

SLATE QUARRY RED

PERMANENCY IN ROAD CULVERTS

The Remedy For Worst Places in Highways.

THIS PROBLEM IS RESLESTED.

Plain or Re-inforced Concrete is The Desire the Best Material to Use For These Small Structures Either in the Fat Top or Arch Form, Says Kansas Highway Engineer.

Much as we need improved roads we need permanent culverts more, says W. H. Goodrich, state highway engineer of Kansas. It is more important that all the bridges and culverts be in good condition than that all the roads be kept in first class repair, for if the road is in bad shape all the culverts and bridges must be kept up. It is not often that a road gets so bad that it is impassible, but this is a common occurrence with culverts and bridges. The old fool is a thing of the past, and almost without exception the present plan places in the road are at the culvert sites. They generally are from two inches to six inches above or below the grade of the road. Rarely have a mudhole no either side and are in such wretched condition we would gladly endure the worst ones we could and often have to do so. And many of the culverts are so poorly built that only covered sufficiently to keep them from the road. Many of the culverts are not built buried in the road, an attempt to keep them from washing out and failing.

Different state highway commissioners have defined culverts as structures having a waterway of less than 20 square feet in cut feet. In this discussion I am considering only those culverts that are not arches.

At the present time practically all culverts in Kansas are too small to carry the water during rains. The real matter of the required area is considered by very few of the road builders.

Good stone laid in cement mortar is the most satisfactory material for culvert top slab construction for culverts. If stone are used a four foot top slab would require that the flagstones be from twelve to fifteen inches thick. Such slabs are very satisfactory structures.

In the arch construction the base of the foundations should be carried below wide to resist overturning and as stability is the main object, this is the principal consideration for the earth fills.

Plain or re-inforced concrete is undoubtedly the best material to use for these small structures either in the flat top or arch form. The arch is somewhat more economical as the abutments need not be carried down so far as in the flat top slab. The arch is somewhat more difficult to build and requires more skilled labor than the flat top slab form. The arch is better to resist injury by settlement.

THE SIXTH WIDOW

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by American Literary Press.

There were five widows in the village of Glen Head when the sixth arrived. Her name was Tompkins.

She was not well known in Glen Head to effect the five widows. He was Thomas Jordan.

The good natured Tom Jordan beloved by everybody, and especially by women, the widowed and barren around. He bought lime and a whitewash brush and hired a man to whitewash the cellar for. He took a too blessed and cut his throat from the front room.

The Widow Tompkins was remarked by her personal effects, but she was not a widow. He had been told all about the widows of Glen Head, and knew who they died, how they died and why they died. She knew that the financial resources of the house to a man. The even that one of the widows had a sore heel and that two others had corns, to the industry was to questioned the sixth widow, but he was not deterred on any point. But not curiosity began him to inquire into the cause of the death of Tom Jordan, he wondered if Providence hadn't sent him a widow to take the place of Tom Jordan. In a month or so he decided that he had, for he was not a widow. So how these five widows had supplied large fat graves.

The Widow Tompkins staid Mr. Jordan to be a widow, and was a good widow, but high as he is here again. Curiosity got the best of the widower that unknown in Jessney about the widows' graves, and suspicion of them arose left to their natural course. The five other widows kept away from the cellar

Use the Mail or Telephone

Our clientele extends over a great radius, having had customers quite often from Carroll and Frederick Counties, Md., and many more would like to avail themselves of our great stock, but for the distance. To all such we say, Use the Mails if not on our Telephone line. We will gladly send you samples of anything that can be sampled, or duly you any goods you desire to order. All being subject to your approval.

FRUIT TRAIN SIX MILES IN LENGTH

Over Eight Hundred Cars Loaded with Adams County Apples Shipped Last Fall would have Made an Immense Train. Other Fruit.

A freight train more than six miles long would have been required to haul all the apples shipped from Adams County in 1910 had all the fruit been shipped at one time. Eight hundred and twenty five carloads of the luscious apples were shipped from this county in the past year as against 626 cars in 1909, the former banner year. Twenty thousand more barrels were shipped in 1910 than three years previous.

In 1905 there were shipped from this county 97,419 barrels of apples in barrels while 34,500 barrels of the fruit were shipped in bulk, making a total of 131,777 in all. The total in 1907 was 183,339 made up of 47,172 barreled fruit and 61,023 in bulk, also showing the increasing percentage of barreled fruit shipped.

The apple output in the county has increased 100 per cent since 1905.

Biglerville holds the record for the number of carloads shipped, 141 cars having been sent from that place. Mc-Knightstown sent out 107 1-4. Other places contributing large shipments were Arendtsville with 84 cars, Aspers 82 carloads, Bendersville, Gardners, Barnetts and Gettysburg.

The county also shipped sixty one and a half carloads of potatoes, only one and a half cars less than the Five hundred bushels are counted to the car.

Biglerville shipped in addition to the apples in barrels, 1,000 bushels in cars of russet apples, 5 cats of evaporated apples and 4 cars of cider by rail.

The peach growing industry is showing an extraordinarily healthy condition, the shipments amounting to 15 carloads while reports show that 15,000 baskets were grown and marketed in addition to the above. Four carloads of pears and one of cherries were shipped from the county during the year.

The Fruit Growers' Association has just issued its 1910 annual report giving the proceedings of the annual convention and a review of the season and products of the past year. It is complete in every detail and is illustrated with half tones showing views in county orchards of all sorts of fine fruit, together with other pictures of interest and views of the men engaged in the fruit growing industry.

FARMER TO PROFIT BY BILL

The Mayer bill, providing for supervision of orchards by county commissioners, which was passed by the legislature last winter, will affect Adams and thirteen other counties if it goes.

"There is one thing about this bill that all members of the legislature should understand," said Prof. H. A. Surface, state zoologist, "and logic. "and that is that the very people who will benefit most by support in horticulture will be most benefited by the act.

"Tis could as where the best fruit is grown all have their horticultural societies and it is because of this that fruit growers in these counties know what spoors of will best take care of their own localities."

The Mayer bill provides $20,000 to start the work and the expenditure thereafter of $10,000 annually. After enough of the crop has been sold to pay for the maintenance of the farm, the remainder of the fruit is to be given to the nearest state institution.
